

The Magic Dragon 3D (2015)

By Walt Wright

This is my first attempt at creating a painting that had 3D qualities, yet look much like a normal painting, without the use of double imaging. Rather than just red and blue anagram colors I included black-light poster colors as well, then worked them together with colors that I found to be neutral or highly effective to the affects of the blue/red 3D glasses. It took some study time but the final result was incredibly surprising and fun!

With the 3D glasses on the darkness of this painting helped to create what appears to be an endless cavern. The dragon takes on an eerie silver color that seemly vibrates. Dragon collector's would enjoy having this on their wall.

Two pair of 3D glasses are included with the painting.
